Biographical Note

Alice Kahler Marshall (1923-1997) was a Harrisburg-area journalist, magazine editor, speechwriter, researcher, compiler, and avid collector who devoted more than fifty years to collecting materials related to all aspects of women's lives, ranging from family and health to law and politics.

Born in Ithaca, New York, she attended George Washington University and worked briefly as a reporter for the Washington Post. During World War II, Mrs. Marshall served in the Women's Army Corps for one year. Following service with the Corps, she developed her initial fascination with the contradictions between the realities of women's lives and the stereotypes of women's behavior, particularly as revealed in popular culture. This led Mrs. Marshall to extensively collect materials on women's history for the rest of her life.

She married in 1944 and raised four children. The Marshall family moved in 1948 to the Harrisburg area where Mrs. Marshall spent 20 years working in various capacities for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. She served as the first public relations officer for the Department of State. Her other positions included that of deputy press secretary, chief speechwriter for the Department of Commerce, and senior research analyst for the House of Representatives. She retired from the Commonwealth in 1981, at which time she increased her collecting efforts. When illness caused her to be housebound in her later years, she became an avid computer user, cataloging her enormous collection on her home computer, and enthusiastically browsing the Internet.

Mrs. Marshall is the author of the reference book Pen Names of Women Writers from 1600 to the Present: A Compendium of the Literary Identities of 2650 Women Novelists, Playwrights, Poets, Diarists, Journalists and Miscellaneous Writers (1985). She also wrote numerous articles on women's history. In 1987, she won Pennsylvania's Award for Service to Women.

Scope and Content

The Alice Marshall Women's History Collection (AMC) is the most extensive collection in Penn State Harrisburg's Archives and Special Collections, and is considered by several scholars to be one of the largest, privately-compiled research collections on women's history in the United States. Acquired by the Pennsylvania State University Libraries in 1991, the AMC was collected by Alice Kahler Marshall (1923-1997) over a period of 50 years. Items in this collection are an extremely eclectic compilation of approximately 11,000 visual, literary, and manuscript materials that reflect more than 300 years of women's history from the mid-sixteenth century through the mid-twentieth century. Represented in the AMC are advertising trade cards, broadsides, hand-colored fashion plates, journals, letters, manuscripts, newspapers, photographs, valentines, 105 posters, over 7,000 pieces of sheet music, more than 6,000 early 20th-century picture postcards, and 7,000 books and pamphlets. A detailed description of the collection's components is as follows:

Books and Pamphlets: This portion of the AMC includes rare works by English and American authors from the eighteenth to the mid-twentieth centuries. The work of early women printers is well-represented, as are early Quaker and abolitionist tracts, accounts of criminal and divorce trials, works by 19th-century women travel writers, propaganda on both sides of the suffrage issue, including Women's Rights Convention programs, and materials on women as both victims and perpetrators of crime. While the collection is currently being cataloged according to the Library of Congress' classification system for improved accessibility, the books were originally collected by Alice Marshall according to the following broad categories: abolition, artists, biographies (individual and collective), bigotry, birth control, bloomer, Mary Elizabeth Braddon, captivity, Civil War, crime, Dorothy Dix, divorce, doctors, education, expositions, fashion, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, health, hoboos, homemakers, housewives, Indian schools, journalism, law, Lowell, medicine, Mormons, novels and novelists, old women, pacifists, Pennsylvania, playwrights, poetry, politics, Queen Caroline, radicals, reform, religion, Salvation Army, Sanitary Commission, science, service organizations, servants, sexual harassment, sexuality, social work, sports, spouse abuse, suffrage, temperance, travel, vice, war, women in the American West, woman, Victoria Woodhull, Women's Movement, Virginia Woolf, workers, and working women.

Buttons, Badges, and Pins: The collection includes a wide variety of pins and buttons, many of which are related to social issues like abortion, birth control, war, political campaigns, and suffrage.

Graphics: This segment of the AMC is composed of engravings, aquatints, lithographs, hand-colored fashion plates, cartoons, and advertisements, largely dating from the mid-1800s through the 1930s.

Manuscripts: Among the manuscripts in the AMC are letters (including those of notable nineteenth-century literary women), autograph books, travel journals, and legal documents.

Newspapers: The AMC includes limited runs and single issues of a wide variety of eighteenth-through early twentieth-century American titles (including numerous Pennsylvania titles), as well as some English publications.

Magazines and Serials: Among the many journals in the AMC are The Free Enquirer, The Lowell Offering, The Women's Journal, The Revolution, The Forerunner, The Woman Citizen, The Anglo-Saxon Review, Mother Earth, The Suffragist, Godey's, and a complete run of Joanna Brome's The Observer (1681-1684). On the lighter side are early twentieth-century comic books, including a set of Arietta and the Cowgirls, and also a series of assorted romance comic books from the mid-twentieth century.

Postcards: This very large collection of 6,131 postcards illustrates Mrs. Marshall's interests in the stereotyping of women.

Posters: The AMC includes approximately 105 varied posters, such as large recruiting and home-front posters from World Wars I and II, and decorative advertisements for a nineteenth-century New York City newspaper.

Sheet Music: Spanning 1790 through the mid-twentieth century, this collection consists of more than 7,000 titles, including music about women, and by women composers and lyricists. The sheet music covers provide stereotypical visual evidence of, among many other subjects, suffragettes, immigrants, saintly mothers, bloomer girls, girls gone bad, working girls, and women suffering from the vagaries of love.

Valentines: This portion of the collection contains approximately 180 valentines. The majority of the items are comic or vinegar valentines that were also known as "Penny Dreadfuls" when they were originally published. Vinegar valentines lampoon women and their physical attributes, habits, styles of dress and behaviors. Among the ephemera are comic valentine sheets (ca. 1870-1920), sentimental valentines from World War II (ca. 1939-1945), and suffrage valentines (ca. 1915-1920).

There are many unique and rare items in the AMC which continue to be discovered on a daily basis. The collection contains many "firsts," including the first printing of the first American literary work to advocate rights for women in The Weekly Magazine (March 17 through April 7, 1798), the earliest argument for women's rights ever published by an American woman, Judith Sargent Murray, in The Massachusetts Magazine (March and April 1790), and the first printing of the first women's rights song published in America, "Rights of Women, by a Lady," in the Philadelphia Minerva (October 17, 1795).

Series I: Catalogued and Uncatalogued Books, ca. 1650-1997.

Books have been cataloged and added to the Library's online catalog, the CAT. Please consult the CAT to identify and locate these items using the following search strategy:

1. Use the "Advanced Search" option located in the "Catalog Searches" box.
2. Find the "Material type" option, and select "Book" from the drop-down menu.
3. Find the "Location" option, and select "Penn State Harrisburg – Alice Marshall – Spec Coll – 3Fl."
4. To further narrow your search, add keywords such as a topic, subject, publication date, or author's name.
5. Hit the "Search" button.

Please consult with faculty or staff in the archives if you need additional assistance.

Series II: Catalogued and Uncatalogued Pamphlets, [ca. 1852-].

There are 50 pamphlet boxes in this series, and the materials are arranged in boxes according to their physical size. As of fall 2016, some boxes are temporarily housed at the University Park campus, where they are being cataloged. Approximately 80% of the collection has been cataloged already and is available for use in the archives. Individual items are searchable via the CAT. Please consult the CAT to identify and locate these items using the following search strategy:

1. Use the "Advanced Search" option located in the "Catalog Searches" box.
2. Find the "Material type" option, and select "Book" from the drop-down menu.
3. Find the "Location" option, and select "Penn State Harrisburg – Alice Marshall – Spec Coll – 3Fl."
4. To further narrow your search, add keywords such as a topic, subject, publication date, or author's name.
5. Hit the "Search" button.

Please also note that pamphlets, as well as books, will appear in your search results. If you are interested in visiting the archives to view a pamphlet in person, please record the pamphlet box number that is adjacent to the call number of the item in the CAT. Staff in Archives and Special Collections will need this information to determine whether or not the materials are located at University Park or in the archives.

Please consult with faculty or staff in the archives if you need additional assistance.

Series X: Valentines, (AKM 91/1.5), ca.1874-1950.

This series contains approximately 180 comic cards and valentines. The majority of the items are comic or vinegar valentines that were also known as "Penny Dreadfuls" when they were originally published. Among the ephemera are comic valentine sheets (ca. 1870-1920), sentimental valentines from World War II (ca. 1939-1945), and suffrage valentines (ca. 1915-1920). Vinegar valentines lampoon women and their physical attributes, habits, styles of dress and behaviors. Included are two comic valentines depicting African-American and Chinese women. Charles J. Howard conceived and drew almost all the comic valentines produced in America between 1880 and 1910. During his lifetime over 20 million of his comic valentines were sold by John McLoughlin of McLoughlin Brothers, New York City (1848-1950). W. J. Rigney wrote almost all the verses on Howard's valentines. Another artist whose work appears in this collection is Hugh Chenoweth. Other publishers represented in the collection include March Brothers, Lebanon, Ohio, with the "Don't..." series; A. J. Fisher, New York City (1869-1874); and Raphael Tuck & Sons, London (1866-1881).

Subseries 1: Women Artists and Sculptors, (AKM 91/1.6), 1836-1988

The folders contain newspaper and magazine articles about the artists and sculptors. There are some copies of the paintings that were done by the women artists. Some of the information about the women is not dated, but most are from the middle- to late-1800s. There is very little included about women sculptors because they usually could not afford to be on their own; most worked in male sculptors' studios.

Baldwin Family Papers (AKM 91/2), 1789-1918 (bulk 1867-1908)

This collection contains Baldwin Family correspondence between the adult Baldwin children and their parents about the farm, their college studies, and news from home. The Baldwin family lived in South Canterbury, CT. The Baldwin family consisted of Dr. Elijah Baldwin, his wife Sarah H., and their children Henry, Hannah, Lucy, Abram, Helen, and Sarah. Henry Baldwin (Yale, 1874) farmed the family homestead. Dr. Helen Baldwin taught at Wellesley and practiced medicine-- first in Philadelphia, then at the New York Infirmity for Women and Children in New York City. Topics include buying and selling cattle, ashes, sheep, and wool; influenza epidemic in horses; trying to hire immigrant farm laborers; the Barnums and their circus in Bridgeport; and an 1876 fire near the Exposition grounds in Philadelphia. R. R. Bowker writes to Henry about The People's Cause (publication). Also includes some financial records for farm purchases.

Series XVII: Vertical Files, ca. 1700-1900

Subseries 1: Individual Personal Names Files, (AKM 91/95), ca. 1700-1990.

The majority of the materials in the personal name files come from a series of fourteen notebooks assembled by Alice Marshall containing assorted documents (original and photocopied), created by or written about hundreds of women (and some men) of achievement (such as letters, original manuscripts, printed materials, photographs, etc.).

The number of documents pertaining to each individual varies widely, ranging from just one autographed fragment to many items. Not all of the items filed under these names were found in the notebooks; some were discovered in other parts of the collection and interfiled when the library acquired the collection. An alphabetical list of the contents of the Individual Personal Name Files is available on the Penn State Harrisburg Archives and Special Collections website which can be found at this link.
